SRP note (12-12-1984):

This "George Murray" is not, I think, John Gillespie Murray. JGM was 29 years old at the time of his death; he was single; he did not, as far as we know, ever live at Blackwell Island, N.Y. I am inclined to believe that if JGM were buried in Greenwood that the cemetery's records would indicate that he is there. Perhaps at the last minute there was a change of plan, and JGM's earthly remains were interred in another NYC cemetery. Possibly one of his business associates -- Strang, Murray or Brewster (see pp. 1975-1976) -- made last minute arrangements to have JGM's earthly remains interred in one of their cemetery plots? It would be wise, I think, to check two or three
